The Swan Mountain Recpath is a scenic, windy route along the eastern edge of Dillon Reservoir in Summit County, Colorado.

car traffic. Eventually, the Swan Mountain Recpath will continue south alongside the road, completing the Summit County Recreational Pathway System's impressive paved loop around Dillon Reservoir.

At US 6 in Summit Cove, head east on the Snake River Recpath to access the popular Keystone Resort and its Lakeside Village and Mountain House areas. Or travel west instead to reach Dillon, where you can consider taking a journey along the western and southern edges of Dillon Reservoir on the Dillon Dam Recpath.

The Swan Mountain Recpath is a scenic, windy route along the eastern edge of Dillon Reservoir in Summit County, Colorado. Running uphill from Keystone's Summit Cove neighborhood to the Sapphire Point Overlook, the trail is a strenuous challenge. However, those who make it are rewarded with stunning views of the lake and the adjacent Gore and Tenmile mountain ranges from the overlook at 9,500 feet—as well as the prospect of a satisfying descent back to Summit Cove.

Alternatively, trail users can continue south on Swan Mountain Road to reach the Farmer's Korner neighborhood of Frisco, where the Frisco-Farmers Korner Recpath and Blue River Recpath meet. The road has been upgraded with a climbing lane for cyclists heading north; those heading south have to carefully intermingle with
