

2025

TrailLink Unlimited

Guides

Great Shasta Rail Trail
California

Great Shasta Rail Trail

California

More than half of the planned 80-mile Great Shasta Rail Trail is now open. The rail-trail meanders through Northern California's

More than half of the planned 80-mile Great Shasta Rail Trail is now open. The rail-trail meanders through Northern California's small towns and the natural beauty of the Lassen and Shasta-Trinity National Forests in the shadow of Mount Shasta, which rises more than 14,000 feet. Note that the trail experience is remote, so bring plenty of water and snacks with you.

The red cinder pathway follows the former McCloud Railway route through Siskiyou and Shasta counties. Built at the turn of the 20th century, this corridor served a vital role for the logging and agriculture industries in the area. Becoming obsolete and unprofitable in the late 1900s, local advocates set forth on railbanking the property for recreational trail purposes.

43 miles are complete in two disconnected sections. The cinder is not as tightly packed along some sections of the trail and it may be more difficult to ride a bike in those areas. Mountain bikes with wide tires are ideal, while cyclists are advised against using road bikes or bikes with narrow tires.

Northern section: The western end of the trail begins at Pilgrim Creek Road (Forest Road 13), about 90 minutes from the California/Oregon state line and 3 miles east of downtown McCloud. From there, the trail parallels Highway 89 for 13 miles to Bartle Wye. At this point, just past Volcanic Legacy Scenic Byway, the trail forks. One branch heads northeast, away from Highway 89, and reaches Hambone after another 13 miles. The other branch heads south from Bartle Wye to Bartle Gap Road, a distance of about 6 miles.

Southern section: Another section of the trail that is disconnected from the rest, begins farther south on the banks of Lake Britton at the "Stand by Me bridge" made famous in the 1986 coming-of-age movie. From there, the trail continues southward (and, for a short distance, parallels the Pacific Crest Trail) to end in Burney after 11 miles.

In the future, the trail will connect to other recreational amenities, including McArthur-Burney Falls Memorial State Park and McCloud River Falls.

Great Shasta Rail Trail

California

States: California

Counties: Shasta, Siskiyou

Length: 43 miles

Trail end points: Pilgrim Creek Road (Forest Road 13) to Burney Depot (Burney)

Trail surfaces: Cinder

Trail category: Rail-Trail

Trail activities: Horseback Riding, Mountain Biking, Walking, Cross Country Skiing

Parking & Trail Access

Burney Depot Trailhead, located at the intersection of Black Ranch Road and Main Street/Highway 299 in Burney, is available at the southern end of the trail.

TrailLink
by Rails-to-Trails Conservancy

TrailLink.com

Great Shasta Rail Trail

California

Trailhead

Restroom

Parking

Water Fountain

Tunnel

TrailLink
by Rails-to-Trails Conservancy

TrailLink.com