Redwood Highway/San Clemente Drive Paths

California

The Redwood Highway/San Clemente Drive Paths combine to parallel their connecting roadways on the edge of Corte Madera.

The Redwood Highway/San Clemente Drive Paths combine to parallel their connecting roadways on the edge of Corte Madera. The combined trail is more scenic than your average sidepath: to the east, views of the marshlands adjacent to the San Francisco Bay are framed by dry, rolling hills. In fact, the trail is part of the larger San Francisco Bay Trail, a developing effort to create a 500-mile multiuse trail encircling its namesake bay.

At the trail's northern end, pick up the Sandra Marker Trail (also known as the Wornum Pathway here) to reach the popular NWP Railroad Trail.
