Darby Creek Trail (PA)

Pennsylvania

The Darby Creek Trail is currently in three major sections, all of which follow the Darby Creek through the woods. The middle Havertown), a playground and nature area nestled within Glendale Park. At the southern end of this segment in Merry Place, there are two narrow dirt and grass spur trails. This section is wide, level, and paved, which likely makes it accessible for those using mobility devices and strollers.

Winding along the creek through Darby Creek Valley Park and Pilgrim Park, the 0.6-mile southern segment has a gravel, grass, and dirt surface. Access the northern end by the intersection of Burmont Road and Warrior Road and access the southern end at Township Line Road, just south of Bella Vista Road.

This trail is part of a massive effort in the Philadelphia region to create a 750-mile network of interconnected trails called The Circuit.
