back through residential developments. The trail terminates at the Elm Creek Park Reserve in Maple Grove. Here the trail links to other trails including the Medicine Lake Regional Trail.

Rush Creek Regional Trail stretches 9.6 miles across forests and farmland, offering a convenient connection to some of Hennepin County's most interesting parks. The path is smooth, wide and mostly flat along its length, with plenty of signage, making it welcoming for a variety of users. Early morning rides are best if you're hoping to encounter wildlife. The trail begins at Coon Rapids Park, along the western banks of the Mississippi, and heads west. The paved pathway cuts through residential neighborhoods before dipping to cross underneath Douglas Drive (County Road 102). Tree plantings shield the trail, giving it a remote feel even in the middle of suburban Brooklyn Park. On the other side of the roadway, the landscape then morphs into farmland which continues after it traverses Highway 169 (US 169), until it hits Jefferson Highway, after which it's a brief journey
