The Trace Multi-use Trail (aka Daffodil Trace) is a 2.1 mile section of former railroad that begins at the Camden Area Chamber of Commerce and continues northwesterly to the termination at a trailhead at the corner of Maul Road and Cash Road. The paved trail is shady and welcoming to walkers and cyclists of all ages. While it has not been officially opened, the trail is already popular with residents of Camden seeking a moment outside for recreation, social interaction and commuting. Play areas and exercise stations are planned for the trail.
