When complete, the Trinity Strand Trail will be a 7.8-mile link between the Katy Trail and the Trinity River. Today, however, 2.5 miles of the concrete trail have been completed. The walking and biking pathway snakes along the original channel of the Trinity River, now accommodating the Turtle Creek. The land acquired thanks to donations from adjacent landowners. The route is not shaded, and the surroundings are mostly commercial and industrial with some newer residential development near its eastern end.

Parking & Trail Access

The Hi Line trailhead is at the western end of Hi Line Dr. There is a sizeable parking area here. (The main trailhead is called Turtle Creek Plaza, along Turtle Creek Dr. It consists of a concrete semicircle, water fountain and a 14-ft beam representing the level of floodwaters during the historic 1908 flood. There is no parking here, however.)
