There are few better ways to experience Boone River without actually getting your feet wet than the Boone River Recreational

There are few better ways to experience Boone River without actually getting your feet wet than the Boone River Recreational Trail. The trail weaves along the scenic river, taking you from one end of Webster City to the other. The start point of the concrete multi-use path is Nokomis Park. As you travel southward, scenery will switch from riparian forest to flat farmland, and natural prairies. The trail also connects to other recreational areas, including parks, golf courses and fishing jetties. Walkers, joggers, cyclists and other non-motorized uses are welcome to share the 10-ft wide path. Crossings are almost all below grade. Your journey will end in Briggs Woods Park.
