Red Oak Creek Trail stretches out in four directions, a concrete cross-shaped trail in the City of Cedar Hills, Texas. Running a total of 3 miles, this connective trail provides access from the neighborhoods it traverses to a variety of recreational gems in the city. At its southern end it is anchored by Dot Thomas Park, to the east, the Cedar Hills Recreation Center. To the west, it flows into the Cedar Trails Greenbelt, which opens up even more to discover for trail travelers. The northern tip of the trail connects to the local high school and stadium and up further to Virginia Weaver Park. The trail's west and southern branches mainly follow the route of the eponymous creek.

The multi-use path features amenities such as benches, lighting and water fountains. There are amenity stations
