Located on Aurora's south end, the Railroad Bed Trail offers a 2-mile diagonal pathway within Cherry Creek State Park, a recreational gem with opportunities for camping, fishing, swimming and picnicking, among others. On your journey, watch for wildlife, such as deer, coyotes, foxes, rabbits, pheasant and other birds.

Suitable for hiking, mountain biking and horseback riding, the single-track dirt pathway connects to a trail at either end: Cottonwood Creek Trail (another natural-surface path) to the north and the 40-mile, Denver-bound Cherry Creek Regional Trail to the south. The Piney Creek Trail, a paved 10-mile route, is also close to the rail-trail's southern end.
