Schuylkill River West Trail

Pennsylvania

The Schuylkill River West Trail will one day span 15.5 miles beginning in downtown Philadelphia and heading northwest

The Schuylkill River West Trail will one day span 15.5 miles beginning in downtown Philadelphia and heading northwest through Lower Merion Township, West Conshohocken, Bridgeport, and Upper Merion Township. Currently, the paved pathway covers just over 2 miles across Upper Merion Township, connecting residents and visitors with Valley Forge National Historical Park, Heuser Park, and Bob Case Park.

The west end of the Schuylkill River West Trail passes underneath the Route 422 bridge to connect with Sullivan's Bridge, a pedestrian bridge that runs parallel to US 422 as it crosses the river. On the north side of the river Sullivan's Bridge connects to the Schuylkill River Trail, which offers more than 75 miles of pathway as it makes its way down to Philadelphia. This link gives residents of Valley Forge and King of Prussia an off-road connection to a large network of trails spanning southeast Pennsylvania.

From its west end, the paved pathway begins just outside of Valley Forge National Historical Park, famed for its Revolutionary War era structures, and continues east loosely paralleling the southern shoreline of the Schuylkill River. Along its journey, the Schuylkill River West Trail offers a well-canopied route, a footbridge over Trout Creek, and access to Heuser Park, which offers athletic fields and a playground. The trail's eastern endpoint is by Bob Case Park.
