Although short in length, the Hope Center Trail provides an important connection between two other trails in Lexington's northern neighborhoods. The paved, 0.3-mile pathway gets its name from the Hope Center, which is adjacent to the trail and provides shelter, meals and social services to the homeless.

On its west end, the Hope Center Trail meets the Legacy Trail, which spans 12 miles and runs up to Kentucky Horse Park. On its east end, the connector meets the Coolaven Rail Trail, which travels to Coolavin Park and the Transylvania University Athletics Complex.
