Winding through Breckinridge Park, this mostly paved 3.8-mile trail passes by sports fields, ponds and wooded areas. There are also playgrounds, picnic areas, and pavilions along the route. The path is fairly flat and wide, although there are unpaved and slightly steeper sections that could be more difficult for mobility equipment or strollers. When it rains, the unpaved sections can also get muddy or even flood. Wooden bridges allow trail users to cross creeks and streams.

In addition to this multi-use trail, the park also has nature paths, soft-surface walkways, and on-road pedestrian/biking routes for a total of 7 miles of trail.
