Findlay lies at the heart of Hancock County's 17-mile Heritage Trail. From the city center, the trail extends west to Litzenberg

NOTE: The western end of the trail through Litzenberg Memorial Woods is closed during hunting season, September 1 to January 31.

Findlay lies at the heart of Hancock County's 17-mile Heritage Trail. From the city center, the trail extends west to Litzenberg Memorial Woods and east to Van Horn Cemetery. The trail mostly follows the course of the Blanchard River and offers scenic views through wetlands, woodlands, and open space. Along the way, it connects several parks, historic sites, neighborhoods, recreational areas and downtown businesses.

In Findlay itself, the trail is also called the Old Mill Stream Parkway and the Blanchard River Greenway (locals recommend traveling west to east). Most of the surface is dirt, gravel, and grass but some portions through the city are paved. Outside of the city, the trail parallels roads. Yellow trail markers with black directional arrows lead the way.
