The Woodbridge Trail, while short, is one of the most scenic in Irvine's extensive trail network. Views of two lakes and surrounding mountains unfold around each bend. It's a great route for families with kids, and that is what you will find. The curves and trail traffic enforce a slower pace, perfect for taking in the views on a sunny weekend.

Trail bridges offer safe passage over busy Alton Parkway and Barranca Parkway. The trail is well connected, intersecting both the San Diego Creek Trail and Freeway Trail. To the north, 0.7 mile of bike lanes on Yale Avenue take you to the Walnut Trail, which runs along an active rail line and offers yet another connection to the Peters Canyon Trail.
