Courtney Campbell Trail

Florida

Overview The Courtney Campbell Trail provides pedestrian and bicycle access along the southern side of the Courtney Campbell

Along the way, the trail offers spectacular views of Tampa Bay. There is even a parking lot along the way designated as a fantastic sunset viewing point that trail users can visit along the way.

Additionally, heading further east, trail users have an opportunity to visit Ben T. Davis Beach, another scenic spot perfect for swimming and more spectacular views.

As the trail leaves the causeway, it skirts the edges of Tampa International Airport before reaching its eastern endpoint along W Cypress St.

Connections

The western end of the Courtney Campbell Trail connects to the Bayshore Trail.

Overview

The Courtney Campbell Trail provides pedestrian and bicycle access along the southern side of the Courtney Campbell Causeway for nearly 11 miles, linking two communities, Tampa and Clearwater, and two counties, Hillsborough and Pinellas, in western Florida.

About the Route

Starting off from the trail's western endpoint, where the Bayshore Trail leads trail users to the rest of the Pinellas Loop, the Courtney Campbell Trail heads east out and over a bridge that crosses Old Tampa Bay into downtown Tampa.
