Wildwood Greenway is an eight-foot-wide bicycle and pedestrian trail in Wildwood, a western suburb of St. Louis. It is part of a trail system offering twelve miles of asphalt trail throughout the city. Currently, the longest continuous segment is just over five miles, although that segment connects to bicycle lanes that continue to Babler State Park.

In addition to outdoor recreation opportunities, the trail provides access to residential areas, to schools (Lafayette High School and Babler Elementary School), and to businesses at Wildwood Town Center.
